PASTOR CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Will Assume His Duties in This City the First Sunday in December

The Russellville Times has the following in a recent issue.

Rev. Howard J. Brazelton, Mrs. Brazelton and twelve year old son, Howard, will arrive in this city next week to reside and Rev. Brazelton will begin his pastorate at the Christian church on the first Sunday in December. The Christian church parsonage has undergone improvements and is now ready for occupancy. Rev. Brazelton is a graduate of Transylvania University, Lexington. He has held pastorates in Macon, Ga., Mobile, Ala., and Earlinton. He served in Earlinton six and half years in two ministries, having been recalled after an absence of four years at a greatly improved salary.

During his last ministry in Earlinton Rev. Brazelton was chief promoter in the erection of a splendid parsonage and in completely remodeling the church building. He also greatly increased the membership and enlarged all the activities. During his ministry he has taught a class at Sunday school known as "The Brazelton Men." This class has an enrollment of seventy-five. Rev. Brazelton is interested in every phase of business, social and educational life. He is a member of the Earlinton Boosters' Club and also the Investigators' Club of Madisonville, these being composed of leading professional and business men.

Mrs. Brazelton is a graduate of Winchester Female College. She is a woman of high ideals and is a great help to her husband's ministry and is very popular in Earlinton. These excellent Christian people will prove quite an addition to this city.

YOUR BILIOUS! LET "CASCARETS" LIVEN LIVER AND BOWELS

Don't Stay Headachy, constipated, sick, with breath bad and stomach sour

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have the headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have a bad cold.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep and cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

Christian Church

Sunday will mark the closing of Howard J. Brazelton's ministry in Earlinton. At the Sunday School hour he will address the class of men he has taught for three and a half years. The children will render a Home Missionary program. The subject of the morning sermon will be "Kept in the Love of God," and at 7:30 p. m. "A Finished Task." The public is invited to hear these last sermons.

During the last days of their residence here Mr. Brazelton and his family have been the recipients of many social attentions evidencing the esteem in which they are held. They will leave Tuesday afternoon for their new home in Russellville, where a cordial welcome awaits them.

WENT BIRD HUNTING AT ST. CHARLES

Paul King, J. E. Fawcett and Miss Lucy Fawcett, of this city, and Norris King, of St. Charles, went bird hunting Wednesday with more or less success, and two of the best dogs in the country. The birds were scarce and wild, only three coveys were found and they were small ones. A few fleet-footed rabbits were jumped during the day but they seemed to be in such a hurry to get away it was hard to get a shot at them. The net result of the day's hunt was 15 quail and 5 rabbits. The honor of bagging the greater number of both birds and rabbits belongs to Norris King, who is an unusually good shot, and is owner of two very fine bird dogs. The day was ideal one for hunting and if game had been plentiful the bag would have been considerably larger. The hunting party enjoyed their trip very much and are indebted to several of the good people of St. Charles, who in various ways, contributed to their enjoyment. Paul King claimed every bird that was killed, he argued that when three people shot at one bird there was no way to tell who killed it and he was as liable to kill it as anyone else, but this argument did not hold when he shot five times at a rabbit and the rabbit went on about his business.

Boost Your Own Town

Some sing the praise of Portland, Me., and some of Portland, Ore. While others cannot talk enough about old Baltimore; You can spot the gay New Yorker and the breezy man from "Chi," And we've met with those who told us: "See Los Angeles, then die." But do YOU sing the glories of your own town at all?

Remember you can talk about it, even if it's small. We hear a lot of 'Frisco's charms from people of the West; We've been assured that of all cities Denver was the best; We knew a man that talked about Seattle by the hour, And one who talked of naught but Minneapolis—and flour;

Do we ever hear YOU boasting, tho', about YOUR port or call? Remember, you can talk about it, even if it's small.

About Dixie's lovely cities we have heard ad nauseam; There are those who even Baraboo with no faint praise would damn; We'll remember all our lives a man who from St. Louis hailed,

And another who to talk of Philadelphia never failed;

We hear a lot of Buffalo, of Pittsburgh, or St. Paul,

So why not try to boost YOUR town, no matter if it's small?

And don't forget that Earlinton (to you) is the best town of them all!

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God has seen fit to remove our beloved sister, Georgia Browning from our midst, and whereas we mourn the loss of a member of the Degree of Honor, be it therefore

Resolved, that we tender our warmest sympathy to the bereaved family and friends in distress, and furthermore resolved, that we drape our charter in mourning for thirty days.

Booker T. Washington

The death of Booker T. Washington has removed one of the remarkable men of the country and of the time in which he lived, one who has done a great and much-needed work, and one whose place it will be difficult to supply.

Booker Washington was of the mulatto caste. His mother was a negro slave and his father an unknown white man. From this lowly condition he came to be a scholar, a man of fine character, and the originator of a great work that made him a benefactor to his people and, thru that means, of great use to his country and section.

Booker Washington recognized the real needs of the Southern negroes in the matter of education and training as no one attempting that important work had done before him, and he has accomplished more in a practical way for the advancement and uplift of the race that has come from any other source.

It was as a leader of thought and originator of new methods that this noted negro educator was greatest, and in this respect his work will live after him.

The white people of the south had a high respect and most kindly feeling for Booker Washington. His work was much appreciated by the whites, and his death is recognized as a great loss to the South in general as well as to the negroes—Nashville Banner.

British Heroines

A British transport was torpedoed in the Aegean Sea. On board the sinking vessel were thirty-six Red Cross nurses.

The captain of a French cruiser who aided in the rescue work tells the story. When the French boats came alongside the transport, rapidly settling, these brave women shouted to the rescuers: "Save the fighting men first."

Such is the devotion of British women to their country's cause. The names of these heroines should be treasured in British history with that of the brave and self-sacrificing Nurse Cavell. —Chicago Evening Post.

National Medical Examination Day

DECEMBER 8, 1915

The alleged Chinese custom of using the doctor to keep people well, instead of waiting until they are stricken with illness before calling for his services, is making marked headway in the United States.

The latest practical suggestion in this line is the naming of December 8th as National Medical Examination Day. This idea is being urged by the Anti-Tuberculosis Association and also by the Life Extension Institute, with which former President Taft, General Gorgas, Professor Irving Fisher, Alexander Graham Bell, and others well known, are identified.

The death rate from tuberculosis has declined nearly 50 percent, in 80 years.

The hope is to popularize a method of prevention which thousands have already found not only one of the best ways of preventing illness, but of raising and maintaining the standard of health and efficiency. This relates not only to individuals, but to employers. In the case of factories, stores and offices, Medical Examination Day would be an appropriate time for employers to adopt such a plan for the protection of their workers.

"The time will soon come," says the President of this Institute, "when having periodic health examinations to prolong the active and productive years of life, will become a common practice among our people, if the movement can have the support of the medical profession, the press, and other educational factors in our national life.

"The physical survey of a large number of American lives demonstrates the very great value that will come to humanity from the establishment of this custom.

"We are urging upon thousands of members throughout the country to give all possible encouragement and support to the Medical Examination Day idea and to the Anti-Tuberculosis Association which have accomplished such extraordinary results in the prevention of misery and needless loss of life."

USING CONVICTS ON HIGHWAYS

Many States Have Abolished
Contract System of Working the Prisoners

WORK CONVICTS ON ROADS

Kentucky Could Possibly Save From Twenty to Thirty Per Cent of the Money Expended For Road Work on the Public Highways Says Commissioner Terrell.

Montgomery, Ky.—(Special)—R. C. Terrell, Commissioner of Roads, when called for his views regarding the employment of convicts on the roads of the State, granted the following interview on this subject:

The recent years the convict labor question has been one that has been given a great deal of attention, and various reforms have brought about a change of conditions as they exist, with a view of how they could be bettered, and as a result, most of the States have abolished the contract system of sending the prisoners and have established the more modern system of sending the convicts on the public highways, and in the prisons for the purpose of preparing materials for the highways, and on other public works in the various States. Reports from various Highway Departments over the United States show conclusively that convict labor can be used to an advantage in road building and at a saving of both to the county and State in the cost of labor for this class of work.

In the biennial report of Mr. T. F. Myers, Warden of the State Penitentiary of Colorado for the year 1912, it is shown that there was built one hundred and fifty-seven miles of road through the mountain sections of that State, at a saving, according to his estimate, of $223,475.67, that the average cost per day per man for the laborers engaged in this class of work was 32c, and further states that the convicts were able to do the work of not only ordinary laborers, but some were found able to perform the services required of experienced men in drilling, blasting, laying, masonry, blacksmithing, and other skilled labor. With such labor commanding a salary of from $2 to $5 per day, this without a doubt, shows that convict labor can be used to advantage on heavy construction work, and in places where more or less permanent camps can be maintained.

Virginia also has succeeded in this undertaking, as is shown by the results. For the past nine years convicts have been used on the public highways of this State, and Mr. P. St. L. Wilson, former State Highway Commissioner, and now the Assistant Director in the United States Office of Public Roads at Washington, D. C., states that more than 1,500 men were used on the public highways of Virginia in the year 1913; that from forty to forty-five were grouped together in a single camp—separate camps being maintained in each county—and that the cost of clothing and feeding them, and general maintenance of the camp was 52c per day for a period of years; that the men were not especially selected, but that the road work were made up of prisoners as were presented at the prisons; that men who were physically weak, even cripples, were often sent out on part of the road force. He further states that the contractors who conducted the work had very frequently offered $1 per day for men furnished by the State.

Under our present system, in Kentucky the State receives the magnificent sum of 78c per day per man engaged under contract, and the State is required to feed and clothe the prisoners and a great many of the prisoners are let at a lower figure than stated above.

Kentucky could possibly save from twenty to thirty per cent of the money used for road work under the present plan, if the convicts could be used on the public highways, and the preparation of the materials could go into the highways. It would be possible to establish semi-permanent camps in the various counties of the State and prepare this material for building, ready to be delivered by rail or motor truck to roads under construction, and these camps could be maintained practically the same season.

The Edmonson County, Kentucky, exists an unlimitable deposit of bituminous asphalt, which is a hard sandstone—the finest road making material known—containing from seven to nine per cent of bitumen or asphalt stone. This material has an overburden of from ten to twenty feet of soil, sand and rock, and lies in a horizontal strata of from six to twenty feet in thickness. Would it not be a fine thing to establish here a permanent camp, where they could be used in the stripping of this material, separating and pulverizing and loading it ready for shipment to the counties of the Commonwealth? The actual cost of production, or even a reasonable per cent of profit could be charged by the State for the material, and at the same time very materially reduce the cost for use in road construction, and insuring to the counties the best stone, macadam, or other hard surfaced roads, a splendid, long and water-proof. Other camps might be established for the purpose of preparing stones as stated above, and still others for the man-facture of brick to be used in the surfacing of roads, and a very efficient organization might be had for the placing of concrete roads as is now being used in Illinois, Georgia, and other States where that type of road is being constructed.

The men become skilled in the performance of their duties, and this, while preparing them for a better existence when they have completed their term, also reduces the possibility of breaking up the organization by men quitting. Another important factor to be considered is the reduction of the cost, the reducing of the cost making it possible for all the counties in the state—not merely the rich counties—but practically all of them, to construct permanent roads. When one stops to consider that there are one hundred and twenty counties in Kentucky, most of them having a road fund ranging from $500 to $5,000, while less than ten have a road fund of more than $20,000, it is quite an easy matter to understand the advantage that convict labor would furnish these counties, where funds are limited, in the securing of permanent types of road.

"The convict labor would not come in competition with free labor, for without it the counties would be compelled to build a cheaper type of road, and in many instances would not be able to build at all, while, with the convict labor, better and more durable types of road could be constructed, as well as a more durable type of bridge. Even in the fabrication of steel material for the longer span bridges these could be obtained at a much cheaper figure, with the convict labor, than they could be done by contract.

"In summing up the advantages to the counties and to the state, one should not overlook the big advantage to the convict himself—the wholesome out-of-door labor—bettering him, morally, morally and physically—a much more healthy occupation than that which he would find inside the prison walls."

Why Not Sleep In the Open Air?

ALMOST every one who wishes it may have a sleeping porch. One may be built over the veranda of the home. If this situation is not suitable, two heavy poles and some cleats against the side of a house will support the platform for the bed. If it is not convenient to make over the bedroom window into a door, the bed may be put right close to the window, and you can crawl through the window into the bed.

Fresh air is the most important thing in the treatment of tuberculosis. Consumptives all over the country are building sleeping porches so that they may sleep out of doors.

If fresh air is good for sick people it must also be good for healthy people. Those who have tried sleeping in the open on sleeping porches say they have never rested so well. Those who get up every morning in winter with headaches and feel generally out of sorts will always find that open windows in sleeping rooms will prevent that sort of feeling. Sleeping right out of doors on a porch is even better.

When you build your home plan for an open air sleeping porch just as you would for a kitchen. If you want one now, don't hold back thinking it will cost a large sum of money. This one was built for $20.

Build your porch where it will be protected from strong winds. It is also a good plan to provide it with curtains to keep out the rain and sun.

Help for Consumptives.

The State Tuberculosis Commission, Frankfort, Ky., will send to any physician, health officer or consumptive family, on request, a free copy of its new booklet on the home care of tuberculosis. This authoritative pamphlet is designed to aid and not supplant the physician. Its chapter on diet will prove especially helpful.

Hotels in New York Thronged With Busy Purchasing Agents

New York.—New York hotels are enjoying an era of almost unprecedented prosperity. Many of them are unable to accommodate the increasing number of guests. This is attributed in part to the arrival of many purchasing agents and their extensive suites sent here by England, France, Russia and Italy.

Agents from stores in South America, Central America, the West Indies and Canada, who formerly went to London, Paris or Berlin, are here to do their buying for the first time.

Buyers and visitors from the West are arriving at the rate of 3,000 a week at a time when the hotels usually are crowded with visitors from the smaller eastern cities and near-by country districts.

Standard Boxes For Rural Routes

Washington—The Post Office Department has issued an order calling for standardization of rural mail boxes throughout the country. This order will not be effective until July, but it means that all patrons of rural free delivery in Kentucky, Indiana and elsewhere must, by July 1, put in place a standard box of the type approved by the department.

THE HUNTER AND THE MERCHANT

The hunter with an unloaded gun never bags any game. And as it is with the hunter and his gun so it is with the merchant and newspaper advertising

The merchant who goes to the people with an advertisement loaded with gripping facts gets the business. He appeals to them because he is progressive enough to tell them what they want to know about the goods they want to buy.

Any person who is in the market for a certain article is interested in knowing something about that article before they part with their money. They want to know store or stores have it before they go out hunting for it. And they read the advertisements in order to get that information.

The people of this community are already buying their holiday goods, and they will spend a large amount of money before the 25th day of December is here.

Your advertisement in this paper will do the work of the load in the hunters gun—IT WILL BAG THE GAME. We are going to call on you and talk it over. In the meantime we ask you to think it over.

Thinking leads to talking; talking produces advertising; advertising gets results.
